

But there's also good news: 48 of the world's most climate-vulnerable developing countries stated today that their path to development will be focused on 100% renewable energy, not the fossil fuels of the past. This is the type of leadership we expect from all countries, and the kind of ambition that we need from everyone.

Nicolas Haeringer - 350.org