

China's Solar Valley

June 2016

It was set up ten years ago by Huang Ming, an entrepreneur and engineer, nicknamed 'The Solar King'. It includes solar research labs, solar heater factories, a solar college, and a solar hotel and convention centre.

China is now the biggest investor in renewable energy in the world, and in 2014 its coal consumption fell for the first time since its recent period of industrialization began.

<http://www.abc.net.au/radionational/programs/scienceshow/china's-solar-valley-lives-the-motto-'solar-everything'/7475158>